HLA Lunchtime Series: Open Scholarship 'All things open'

Program
Thursday 15th July and Thursday 22nd July, 1.00-2.30pm
2 x 1.5hour online sessions

Facilitator
Ann Ritchie, member HLA Executive (ann.ritchie@alia.org.au)

Seminar 1 Thursday 15th July 1.00-2.30pm AEST

Presenters

Catherine Clark, Curtin University Librarian and CAUL Director, Advancing Open Scholarship Program
Prof Virginia (Ginny) Barbour, Executive Director, Open Access Australasia
Catherine and Ginny will co-present on the work that they have been doing at a national level to progress an open research strategy, including regarding implications for health researchers and health research leaders.

Dr Danny Kingsley, Associate Librarian, Content and Digital Library Strategy at Flinders University; Visiting Fellow, Australian National Centre for the Public Awareness of Science, ANU
Hard won: the challenges of obtaining scholarly communication knowledge & skills
http://www.slideshare.net/DannyKingsley/hard-won-the-challenges-of-obtaining-scholarly-communication-knowledge-skills
This talk will consider the challenges associated with identifying and acquiring the skills needed in scholarly communication. It will describe some of the findings from a recent Australasian survey https://cpas.anu.edu.au/research/research-projects/scholarly-communication-knowledge-and-skills-australasian-research considering the educational and training backgrounds of people working in scholarly communication support, and their confidence in a range of specific competencies. The talk will also discuss the need to identify and articulate a curriculum for scholarly communication for the research community and how this will both inform the skill sets needed within academic and other research libraries and assist future workforce planning.

Lisa Kruesi, PhD Candidate, Monash University
Results and discussion about Lisa's PhD research on a Knowledge Management System framework for an Australasia open biomedical repository.

Seminar 2 Thursday 22nd July, 1.00-2.30pm AEST

Dr Kate Davis, Director Strategy and Analytics, CAUL
Fiona Salisbury, La Trobe University / CAUL Program Director (Enabling a Modern Curriculum)
Steven Chang, Coordinator, Digital Literacies and Open Education, La Trobe University
Open educational resources and the modern curriculum https://doi.org/10.26181/61009490d292f
Steven will introduce the benefits of open educational resources (OER) in an era of continuous economic crisis, precarious student welfare, and a rapidly transforming learning and teaching environment. Kate and Fiona will outline CAUL's new projects in this area to build capacity in libraries so they can partner with stakeholders to enable a modern, equitable, and dynamic curriculum.

Sharron Stapleton, Library Research Data Specialist, Griffith University Library,

Making Griffith University's Open Research Statement a reality
In November 2020, Griffith made an explicit commitment to foster an Open Research culture within the University to help drive greater societal and economic impact from that research. Engagement with the many voices of the academy is critical for cultural change of this nature. Sharron will discuss the work of the Open Research Reference Group formed to address the barriers to change, in these first steps towards making open research a reality at Griffith University.

Cheryl Hamill, Head of Department, Library & Information Service, South and East Metropolitan Health Service, WA.
OA in health libraries – impacts, responses, futures

Slides and links
Dr Kate Davis, Director Strategy and Analytics, CAUL
Fiona Salisbury, La Trobe University / CAUL Program Director (Enabling a Modern Curriculum)
Steven Chang, Coordinator, Digital Literacies and Open Education, La Trobe University
Open educational resources and the modern curriculum
https://doi.org/10.26181/61009490d292f

Danny Kingsley: http://www.slideshare.net/DannyKingsley/hard-won-the-challenges-of-obtaining-scholarly-communication-knowledge-skills